Reports being presented

56th Annual Community meeting Wed., June 13

A new feature is being added to the agenda of the Fifty-sixth Annual General Meeting of the Jewish Community Council-Ottawa Vaad Ha'Ir slated for Wednesday, June 13.

This year the Vaad and UJA have chosen to incorporate recognition of UJA leadership and volunteers into the proceedings. The new format takes the place of the Kovod Evening as a freestanding event.

The meeting will be called to order at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Jewish Community Centre, 151 Chapel Street.

A dessert and coffee reception beginning at 7:00 p.m. will be held prior to the formal proceedings.

As is customary, the evening will see awards for outstanding service to the Ottawa Jewish Community — the Gilbert Greenberg Distinguished Service Award and the Freiman Family Young Leadership Award — presented to the deserving recipients.

The Vaad will also use the occasion to acknowledge the contributions made to the Ottawa and Canadian Jewish communities by two Embassy of Israel staffers whose posting in Canada is nearing completion — Gershon Zohar, counsellor and his wife, Riva and Om Ben-Ivry, attaché, and his wife, Tali.

Business items on the agenda will include reports by Jewish Community Council President Dr. Eli Rabin and Executive Director Gerry Koffman.

As well, the community will receive an overview of the reports of standing committees, agencies, institutions and affiliated organizations as published in the upcoming Special Edition of the Ottawa Jewish Bulletin & Review.

In addition, the ten new appointees to the Vaad Board of Trustees will be installed. The community is invited to attend.

Ottawa host city in June for CJC parleys

Canadian Jewish Congress is planning a unique rendezvous with Ottawa the first weekend in June, as the nation's capital plays host to two CJC-sponsored conferences and four national committee meetings.

With CJC national meetings normally rotating between Toronto and Montreal, the extent of Congress's activity set for Ottawa June 1-3 is truly unprecedented.

From June 1-3, CJC's National Small Communities Committee together with the Ottawa Jewish Community Council, will be hosting a Symposium on Community Development.

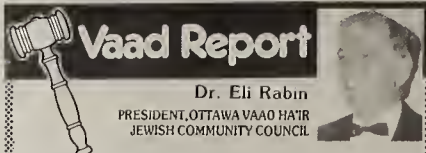

On Sunday, June 3rd, Congress's Law and Social Action

Committee has organized a Conference on Canadian Jewish Disabled.

The same day, meetings are scheduled at the Jewish Community Centre for CJC's National Executive and National Officers Committees, as well as the Joint Community Relations and Israel Action Committees.

The Symposium on Community Development is designed to bring together Jewish Canadians living in smaller, remote areas of the country to provide them with an opportunity to meet others like themselves, to exchange ideas, and to foster their sense of local Jewish community

OPERATION EXODUS

Emigration of Jews to Israel from Soviet Russia continue to gather steam. Estimates now have been revised upwards. Israel expects to receive over 200,000 Olim during the year 1990. Indeed, it has been reported that there have been visa requests for over 1,000,000 people. The movement of people from one country to another always poses many problems. In this case, the financial requirements by the State of Israel in order to fulfill the goals of "Operation Exodus" will be met by both the residents of Israel and the Jews of the Diaspora. Whatever the political and security problems the State of Israel faces, we must ensure that this historical imperative — the absorption of new Olim — must be satisfied. All the gates to freedom from persecution are now open; we must take advantage of the historic opportunity presented to our generation to assist the gathering-in of exiles to the Land of Israel. Our community, in concert with Jewish communities across Canada, will be involved in the extraordinary financial efforts to finance "The Exodus". When asked to participate please be generous.

Mr. Arafat of the PLO and Mr. Saddam Hussein of Iraq are now joining forces to fight this Aliyah. The Arab governments will be holding special meetings in an attempt to block the emigration of Jews to Israel. Fortunately, most civilized countries have not bought the Arab line although Arab pressures have succeeded in playing havoc with air transportation. However, the year is now 1990 and we have a free and democratic State of Israel whose main purpose is to accept Jews from all over the world. There is no longer a White Paper or a foreign power who can restrict entry of Jews to Israel.

COMMUNITY MISSION TO ISRAEL

From April 18th to May 2nd Sunny and John Tavel led the Ottawa Jewish Community UJA mission to Poland and Israel. At the same time 21 youngsters led by Marlene Cherun participated in the UJA program — The March of the Living. In the depths of hell at Auschwitz-Birkenau members of our community (teenagers and adults) were able to witness first-hand the unspeakable, the unbelievable and try to come to grips with the banality of evil. From there the groups made their way to Israel and joined the citizens of Israel in the celebration of Yom Ha'Atzmaut. They celebrated coming "home" to a living, vibrant, pulsating, Jewish political entity. It has been characterized as the best mission ever to go from Ottawa to Israel. Yasher Koach to Sunny and John Tavel and to the UJA staff people from our community.

STATE OF ISRAEL BONDS

On May 1st Mr. and Mrs. Norman Zagerman hosted an evening in honour of Mr. Harry Leikin, this year's honoree for State of Israel Bonds. Over $600,000. (US) was invested in Israel by the attendees that evening. On June 11th Mr. Leikin will be honored at the "Bond Dinner" and the community looks forward to a record attendance and successful participation in the gala event.

MULTIPLE CAMPAIGN APPEALS COMMITTEE (MCAC)

At the next board of Trustees meeting the trustees will be asked once again to ratify the policy of this committee. According to the constitution of the Ottawa Vaad Ha'ir, the powers, functions and duties of the Vaad include the ability: "to authorize and regulate all campaigns in the community for religious, cultural, educational, health, welfare, and other purposes of a generally charitable nature". Through the MCAC the Vaad is able to maintain a certain degree of discipline within the community with regard to the proliferation of fund-raising activities.

NATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

(June 1-3, 1990) The National Small Communities Committee has organized a meeting for which the Ottawa Jewish Community will be the co-sponsor. Details of the meeting will be published in the Bulletin and we hope that members of the Ottawa Jewish Community will join the meetings.

Outgoing Israeli commander says Intifada shows signs of slowing

By Richard Rubin
NEW YORK (JTA) — The outgoing commander of the Israeli army in the Gaza Strip says he's leaving his post there satisfied he accomplished his mission as humanely as possible.

Appearing here recently at the invitation of Friends of the IDF, Col. Giora Inbar said he tried to reduce intifada-related violence "according to regulations, according to orders and according to my conscience as a human being."

Can be done

"The fact that violence there has been minimized shows that it can be done that way," Inbar said.

According to the IDF, 28 Palestinians were shot to death by Israeli troops in the administered territories in the first three months of 1990, compared with 53 killed in the last three months of 1989.

Inbar credits the decrease in intifada-related violence to the IDF's tactics of fighting specific targets among intifada leaders. In the past six months, 130 masked youths, members of intifada shock troops and Popular Front committees were caught, wounded or killed by the IDF, he said, adding that 600 other intifada leaders were arrested through IDF intelligence.

"There are no more mass demonstrations now in the Gaza Strip with thousands of people," Inbar said. "Now there are 50 to 100 people."

But Inbar, the son of retired

Brig. Gen. Benny Inbar, said while intifada-related violence has slowed in the Gaza Strip, one should not conclude the 28-month intifada is coming to an end.

"It is very much alive in the heads and souls of Palestinians in the West Bank and Gaza," he said.

Inbar scoffed at the idea of the IDF crushing the intifada by force.

"Crush who? There are between 700,000 and 800,000 Palestinians in the Gaza Strip. Who do we have to crush? All of them? We are proud to say our system fits a democratic country."

The rise of the Islamic fundamentalist movements in the Gaza Strip, such as Islamic Jihad and Hamas, has complicated combating the intifada there. "They are more fanatical, willing to take more risks," he said.

Begun cooperating

While the IDF arrested 500 Islamic Jihad and Hamas leaders several months ago, the groups have recently begun cooperating with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

"That gives us one address to deal with, but it made the intifada leadership more powerful," Inbar said.

While Palestinian deaths caused by the IDF was cut nearly in half the first three months of 1990, the number of Palestinians killing Palestinians accused as collaborators increased to 35, the first time during the intifada that Palestinians killed more Palestinians than IDF troops.

Of the 137 Palestinians murdered and identified during the intifada as collaborators, only four had any actual connection to the Israeli authorities, Inbar said.

"Most of the murders are by the religious movements, dealing with drugs and prostitution," he said. "For them, these are crimes of cooperation with Israel and the West."

Job difficult

The IDF is trying to combat the Arab against Arab violence, but with the resignation of local Gaza and West Bank police at the beginning of the intifada, the job is difficult, Inbar said. "There are people in Israel," Inbar said, "who believe we must let it go on, saying that the 1939 Arab revolt failed because of internal killings. But these same people who are going to kill Palestinians, they would also kill our people."

Inbar leaves the Gaza Strip to command the renowned Givati Brigade, to which he had been assigned before he volunteered for the Gaza duty. Brigade command is the highest ranking post to which a colonel could be assigned.

The outgoing commander said he told his replacement, whom he identified as "Danny," to "remember we are not fighting against targets, but against civilians."

"And after you find your enemies, the hard nucleus, you must fight them like it's a battlefield."

Commentary

Cynthia Engel
EDITOR

Recently a group from this community took part in a very special journey.

Their odyssey was not one for the faint of heart.

In mid-April, immediately following Pesach, a contingent comprising both children and adults flew off to share an experience not one of them will ever forget — as part of a diaspora-wide ingathering called The March of the Living.

As participants in that event, while the rest of us went about our familiar and daily routines, they joined, in Poland, with thousands of Jews from around the world to walk a path walked by thousands of Jews before them.

The path to the concentration camps of World War II.

But this group walked with one difference...

They lived to tell about it.

That group has returned, rejuvenated and refreshed with a vital post-Yom HaShoa stay in the light and the hope of Israel.

But they are not the same people who left, for on their very special journey they saw things and felt emotions not seen and felt before.

They are, most of them, quieter, more introspective, deeper.

From time to time, when the need to do so surfaces, they will share a particular remembered moment.

From time to time, when they are able, they seek out a comforting ear and tell a brief tale.

Then they fall silent.

There is too much to tell and it is too awesome. So, often, they just shrug their shoulders, overwhelmed, disbelieving.

As time passes and they are able to sort what must be told, we, as a community, will get the whole story within the pages of this publication.

But first those who lived it have to digest the component parts and come to terms with the fact that they, these many years later, walked the path of death...

And lived to tell about it.

involvement.

Anyone interested in participating should register with Shellie Ettinger, 1590 Ave. Dr. Penfield, Montreal, Quebec, H3G 1C5 (514) 931-7531.

The Law and Social Action Committee has invited community councils and federations across the country to send delegates to its June 3rd Conference on Jewish Disabled in Canada.

One objective of this meeting is to assess the establishment of a CJC inter-community network to assist Jewish disabled in their efforts toward fuller integration into Jewish community life. For more information, contact Eric Vernon at the Ottawa J.C.C., 232-7306.

CJC President Les Scheininger and Moshe Ronen, chairman of the National Executive, will be leading the Congress contingent as the organization makes history in Ottawa this June.

JSSA marks a decade of service

Appeals for increased Jewish immigration from Eastern Europe and for greater commitment to volunteerism highlighted the Tenth Anniversary celebration of the Jewish Social Services Agency of Ottawa-Carleton, held Sunday, April 29 at the Museum of Civilization in Hull.

Under the able chairmanship of Ellen Fathi and her dedicated committee, over 300 people enjoyed the event which recognized the agency's accomplishments over the past decade and established these two themes as priorities on the JSSA's upcoming agenda.

JSSA Executive Director Elaine Rabin and President Margo Schwartz Eliany paid tribute to the staff, Board members and over 400 volunteers who have served the Agency since its inception.

Mrs. Rabin pointed out that JSSA has responded to a number of challenges in the course of its development and thanked the Agency's funders — the United Way, the Jewish Community Council, the Ontario Ministry of Community and Social Services, The Regional Municipality of Ottawa-Carleton, the Jewish Immigrant Aid Society, and Employment and Immigration Canada — for their continuing support.

The program featured two keynote speakers — the Honourable Barbara McDougall, Federal Minister of Employment and Immigration and Mrs. Ruth Goldbloom of Halifax, a distinguished humanitarian who has lent energetic volunteer leadership to a plethora of public agencies and causes at both the national and local levels.

Ms. McDougall congratulated the Agency for its efforts in the area of immigrant resettlement. She noted with particular pride that her department is a partner in JSSA's resettlement work, providing funding through the Immigrant Settlement and Adaptation Program.

The Minister commented on events in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe, affirming that the government was alarmed by rising anti-Semitism and would look with compassion at cases of Jewish immigrants.

Canadians cannot ignore the signals emanating daily from Eastern Europe, and the government will err on the side of tolerance, she said.

"History has recorded far too often how one small flame has started an inferno of hatred and violence," she said.

Introduced as a "volunteer extraordinaire", Mrs. Goldbloom lauded the JSSA and its volunteers as a model of what can be achieved through a genuine "spirit of community". Noting that the Agency has served clients with 14 first languages other than English or French, she described it as "not a service by and for Jews, but a service by Jews for all Canadians."

Mrs. Goldbloom also provided an enthusiastic presentation on "Imagine", the national program to promote volunteerism which is being conducted under the auspices of the Canadian Centre for Philanthropy. A member of the program's board of directors, she outlined its objectives: increasing corporate charitable donations to one percent of pre-tax profits and a corresponding increase in contributions of money and time from individuals.

The program also included presentations by Jewish Community Council President Dr. Eli Rabin and past Chairperson Gerry Levitz and Alderman Jacquelin Holzman. To commemorate Yom Hazikaron, a poignant service was led by Shalich Reuven Solomon who provided personal reminiscences of colleagues and friends who fell in the various Israeli wars.

In addition to immigrant resettlement, the Jewish Social Services Agency serves the community in the areas of home support for seniors and counselling.

A new program, counselling assistance to children enrolled in Ottawa-Carleton's Jewish school system, was added recently.

Representatives from the regional, municipal and federal governments attended, along with individuals from member agencies of the United Way, the Ontario Association of Family Service Agencies and various co-delivers of programs and services.

Yasher Koach and Continued Success To Jewish Social Services Agency

Dear Editor:

As a native born Ottawa and a proud member of our Jewish community, I am writing to congratulate Jewish Social Services Agency of Ottawa for ten years of exceptional service.

From the early days as a part-time community social service organization, we have been most fortunate to have a growing team of dedicated social workers and support staff under the capable chairmanship of Elaine Rabin, executive director, who provide advice and assistance in so many areas, including the kosher meals on wheels and tele-shalom phone programmes for our seniors, numerous support groups, assistance in the resettlement of Russian immigrants, and most recently the palliative care programme. Wherever there has been a need, J.S.S. has stepped in.

On a personal note, J.S.S. was invaluable to me and the founding Board of Directors of the Tamir Foundation, which provides supervised housing for our Jewish developmentally handicapped young adults.

On behalf of my family and myself, we wish the Jewish

Ottawa U. Hebrew Class Very Worthwhile

Dear Editor:

Stuck in a small oasis in the Sinai surrounded by many square miles of hostile desert, I found that my life was dependent on my ability to communicate in Hebrew.

As events turned out, my Hebrew held out and my safe return to the cafes of Tel Aviv was assured. As I sat sipping my coffee aflooch my thoughts turned to Ottawa where I became fluent in the Hebrew language.

It is a fact too little realized that Hebrew 101 exists as a marvellous introduction to Hebrew, the living language. As an introductory course at Ottawa University, it gathers together an assortment of students, some of whom study full time at the university, while others are 'special students.'

Social Services yasher koach, and continued future success in all its endeavours.

Sincerely,
Lily Penso

In my class, the group had varied intentions, but in the end they all developed the ability to communicate, albeit in simple Ivrit, based on a good grounding of Hebrew grammar. And although it is true that we had to sit examinations, that can be best expressed as short term pain for long term gain.

Next September, we will move on to an intermediate course with Yael Lefkovich, our teacher, once again at the University of Ottawa.

Those who already have the basics of Hebrew and who wish never to be stranded in the desert of ignorance, are urged to join us. Participants have fun, meet new faces and will learn a great deal.

Lehitraot.

View from the Pulpit

The Indivisibility of Torah, Israel and Jerusalem

By Rabbi Saul I. Aranov
Congregation Beth Shalom

It is not just a coincidence that the occasion of the twenty-third anniversary of Jerusalem's unification on the 28th of Iyar and the Shavuot festival, when Mt. Sinai was the locale of the wedding canopy of the Torah-hrde, and the groom-the people Israel, are in close proximity. Just as the location of the marriage in the life of a couple is only temporary and the permanent character of their marriage is played out in their home, so was Sinai a transient place, while Jerusalem symbolizes the permanent home of the Torah. Thus did Isaiah declare (23): "For out of Zion shall come forth Torah and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem".

Indeed, in Abraham's time Salem, and later Shiloh, Beth-El and Shechem served as centres of religion. It was only, however, when King David established Jerusalem as the federal capital of all the tribes that it alone symbolized the political and religious unity of Israel which ushered in the First Jewish Commonwealth. The greater wonder about Jerusalem is that even after the destruction of the city and its Temples in 586 B.C.E. and in 70 C.E., it took on even more symbolic significance. Jerusalem-consciousness struck deep roots in our feelings and beliefs.

Jeremiah perceived (22:4) that as God's covenant with David was permanent so was His covenant with Jerusalem everlasting. Subsequently, Jerusalem and Zion poetically symbolized the Jewish people in the Prophets and Psalms. Yerushalayim is also the mourning mother who awaits the return of her progeny as is recorded in the mystical blessing "May she who was barren be exceedingly glad when her children return to her in joy". This is echoed in the Haftarah blessing which concludes "who maketh Zion rejoice in her children". A central place is given to Jerusalem in our daily Amidah liturgy as well as in the Grace after Meals when we pray for the rebuilding of Jerusalem.

We note a decisive difference between the Christian concept of Jerusalem and the Jewish concept. The Christian sees the earthly Jerusalem as a springboard to the more important heavenly Jerusalem. The land is holy only insofar as it contains the sites of the founder of their faith, which is regarded by them as worthy of pilgrimage. Compare the view of our Talmudic sages (Babylonian Talmud 5b) who hear God declare "I will not enter the celestial Jerusalem until I have first entered the terrestrial Jerusalem". The message is clear, Israel must return to a unified earthly Jerusalem if the idea of Jerusalem is to have any meaning. This view permeates all the prophetic teachings.

The Muslim pretension to Jerusalem's holiness is based as much on political considerations as it is done on religious concerns. Initially, the theological primacy of Jerusalem obliged Muhammad to ascend to heaven in his religious-mystical odyssey via Jerusalem as Mecca did not offer a direct line. Only with the conquest of Jerusalem by the Khalif Omar in 638 was a political claim made to Jerusalem's real estate under the Muslim doctrine of 'dar al-Islam'. The twelfth century Christian savant Bernard of Clairvaux declared pilgrimage to Jerusalem as unnecessary because one could acquire the mystical ascent just as well at Clairvaux. Judaism's paramount concern is not just for holy sites as places of pilgrimage nor for isolated historical events that occurred there, but for Jerusalem itself as a natural extension of the Jewish people.

It is true that Jerusalem became the universal city of worship for all people in ancient times. What Mecca is for Muslims what the Vatican is for Catholics, what Benares is for Hindus, Jerusalem remains for Judaism. It is the home of the mother religion of ethical monotheism. Since 1967, Christians and Muslims have enjoyed unrestricted access and control over their holy places in Jerusalem. The world ought not forget that before 1967, under Jordanian occupation every Synagogue suffered desecration and destruction. I bore witness to the wholesale vandalism of tombstones on Mount of Olives cemetery. In modern history only under Israeli administration has Jerusalem become the accessible 'House of Prayer for all People' (Isaiah 56:7).

In light of the aforementioned, it is insulting for the U.S. President Bush, who has been poorly counselled, to declare that East Jerusalem is to be regarded as occupied territory and that Israeli settlement should be prohibited there. Instead the U.S. ought to acknowledge the resolution introduced into the U.S. Senate by N.Y. Senator Daniel Moynihan to recognize Jerusalem as the united capital of the State of Israel. I pray that in days to come Jerusalem shall be universally acknowledged in the words of the Psalmist (122:3): "K'ir sheh-chubrah lah yachdav" — as a city compacted together. Just as the Jewish people stood one and inseparable at Mount Sinai on that first Shavuot, so are both people and city truly one entity.

Weizmann mathematician aids in treating 'lazy eye' condition

A Rehovot mathematician who spends most of his time studying the magnitude of earthquakes has joined doctors in research on treating children with a condition commonly known as "lazy eye."

Dr. Michael Shimshoni of the Mathematics Department at the Weizmann Institute of Science has taken time off from seismology to collaborate with eye doctors from nearby Kaplan Hospital.

The ophthalmologists are trying to improve the treatment of children with amblyopia, in which one eye does most of the work and the other is lazy.

The condition is treated in small children by covering the good eye to force the lazy one to become active and improve its seeing ability, before the laziness becomes a permanent habit.

The treatment, known as occlusion therapy, is most effective if begun in early infancy.

But doctors have argued about the cut-off point beyond which it is no longer effective and raises strong opposition for social reasons among children with the condition. Some say this age is eight years old, while the Kaplan doctors have found that the age limit for starting therapy can be 11 or 12.

The files of 350 amblyopic patients at Kaplan were processed by the Weizmann mathematician. Dr. Shimshoni helped organize and process the data, aiding the doctors to see patterns that would otherwise have not been apparent.

Storing the data on computers, he made it easier to collate the results of follow-up exams and plan for long-term treatment.

According to his data, the older children improved their sight almost as much as the younger ones if they followed their doctor's instructions faithfully.

Dr. Shimshoni also found that the greatest improvements were made during the first three months of treatment.

The joint mathematical-ophthalmological research is continuing to determine whether treatment should be resumed if the lazy eye condition deteriorates after treatment stops.

Salads are simple to prepare; just toss together whatever vegetables and/or fruit you like and toss with the dressing. But it's the dressing that makes it either mediocre or terrific! I'm always experimenting with new concoctions to try and give my salads some pizzazz. Why not add them to your collection?

Orange Honey Dressing

This is wonderful on a spinach, mandarin orange style salad.
1/4 cup frozen orange juice concentrate
1/2 tsp. dry mustard
1/2 tsp. salt
1 Tbsp. vinegar
1/4 cup oil
1-1/2 Tbsp. lemon juice
2 tsp. poppy seeds
1/4 cup honey

Combine all ingredients in a jar with a tight-fitting lid. Shake well and pour over salad. Toss and serve.

Cheddar Cheese Dressing

This is great on a spinach and/or romaine, mushroom type salad.

2 eggs (shells intact with no cracks)
2 cups oil
2 tsp. brown sugar
1/4 cup vinegar
1-1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
1/4 lb. cheddar cheese, grated
1 tsp. dry mustard
3 green onions, finely chopped
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. prepared horseradish

Combine first 5 ingredients in the bowl of a processor fitted with steel blade and process 2 minutes. Add horseradish and pulse 2-3 On/Off turns to combine. With machine running, add 1/2 cup of the oil through the feed tube. Mix the remaining oil with the vinegar and lemon juice and then pour through the feed tube with machine running. Process another minute. Add cheese and chopped onion. Pulse 1-2 times to combine. Refrigerate until needed. (If too thick, it can be thinned with a little oil.)

Citrus Yogurt Dressing

This adds just the right touch to any fruit salad.
3/4 cup sugar
2 large egg yolks
3/4 cup fresh orange juice
2 Tbsp. cornstarch
1/2 cup fresh lemon juice
1-1/2 tsp. freshly grated orange zest
1/4 cup pineapple juice
1 tsp. freshly grated lemon zest
1 cup plain yogurt

In top of double boiler over simmering water, combine first 4 ingredients. Heat until hot. In a small bowl, combine the yolks and cornstarch with a wire whisk. Whisk a little at a time into juice mixture. Stir in grated zests and cook, stirring for 10 minutes, or until thickened. Transfer to a bowl and let cool, covered with plastic wrap. Stir in yogurt and serve over fruit. Makes about 3 cups.

Creamy Parmesan Dressing

3 large eggs, room temp.
1/2 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
(shells intact and no cracks)
1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
1/2 Tbsp. minced garlic
1/2 cup fresh grated Parmesan cheese
3/4 tsp. salt
1 cup oil
3/4 Tbsp. white pepper

In processor or blender, blend the eggs, garlic, salt, pepper, Worcestershire sauce, lemon juice and Parmesan cheese, for 15-20 seconds or until the mixture is smooth. Add the oil through the feed tube with motor running, in a thin stream and process until it is mixed in well and dressing is smooth and pale in colour. Makes about 2 cups.

Irwin Cotler to deliver 4th Rosenberg Lecture

Irwin Cotler, professor of law at McGill University, a leader of the Jewish Community in Canada and advocate for many human rights causes will be the guest speaker at the fourth annual Imre Rosenberg Memorial Lecture on Tuesday evening June 12 at 8:00 p.m. at Temple Israel, 1301 Prince of Wales Drive.

Professor Cotler, who was president of the Canadian Jewish Congress from 1980 to 1983, and was counsel for the Congress before the Deschênes Commission on Nazi War Criminals will speak on "The Year of the Revolution: Soviet Jewry, Eastern Europe and the Middle East."

Scharansky's lawyer

As an international advocate for human rights, Professor Cotler was the lawyer for Natan Scharansky, fighting for nine years for Scharansky's release from the Soviet Union.

Cotler has also represented Andre Sakharov, Ida Nudel and Ukrainian dissident Alexei Nurzenko and has defended political prisoners in South Africa and Latin America.

Prof. Irwin Cotler

Irwin Cotler made a significant contribution to the development of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms and has successfully litigated a series of landmark cases under the Charter.

Professor Cotler's talk is expected to deal with a wide range of issues including the revolution in the Soviet Union and its impact on Soviet Jewry, anti-Semitism and on Israel. (The day before the lecture, Professor Cotler will be returning from an international human rights mission on the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia; he is expected to bring some first-hand news from this mission.)

In South Africa

In addition, Professor Cotler, who, earlier this month, was in South Africa, will discuss how the Middle East and South Africa have been affected by charges in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

This is the fourth in an annual series of lectures sponsored by the Truda and Imre Rosenberg Educational Foundation and Temple Israel in honor of the late Dr. Imre Rosenberg. It is especially fitting that Professor Cotler should give one of the lectures in this series as both his work and that of the late Dr. Rosenberg centred on issues related to human rights, European Jewry, Israel and the Canadian Jewish Community.

Dr. Rosenberg was a diplomat, lawyer, teacher, writer, painter and scholar. A native of Czechoslovakia, he graduated in law from Bratislava University in 1939 and in that same year joined President Edouard Benes and the Czechoslovak Government-in-Exile. He served with the Czechoslovak Brigade from 1940-43.

Rescue and transport

Following the war, Imre Rosenberg was appointed head of the Department of Repatriation and Deputy Minister of Social Welfare in the first Czechoslovak post-war government. In that capacity, he organized the rescue and transport of over three hundred orphaned child survivors of Terezin concentration camp to London, England in July 1945.

He resigned in 1946 from the Czech government and, under life sentence for Zionist activities, he fled to Canada in 1948.

He continued to be vitally concerned with all issues related to refugees and displacement and served on the federal government's Refugee Status Advisory Committee. Imre Rosenberg was an active member of the Jewish Community.

The community is invited to attend.

Kosher products in U.S. exceed 19,000

A record number of as many as 1,000 new food products have been certified kosher during the last 12 months, bringing the total number of kosher food products on U.S. supermarket shelves to over 19,000.

The products range from items produced by small manufacturers to such U.S. giants as Ultra Slim Fast.

Supermarket chains are having a significant impact on the number of available kosher food products. Chains like Pathmark and Waldbaum's produce as many as 500 kosher private label items.

This past Passover, consumers were greeted with an unprecedented variety of foods certified kosher for the holidays, ranging from Wise Potato Chips to Manischewitz Passover Cereal.

1100 items

Dominic's, one of Chicago's major supermarket chains featured 1100 kosher for Passover items in its special sections according to James Baumeister, of Dominics.

New York chains featured even more products.

The record number of kosher food products has catapulted the kosher food industry into a $1.75 billion industry. According to major distributors of kosher food products, the industry has been growing at a 15-20% rate each year.

An estimated 6 million Americans eat kosher but the engine that drives the market are the 1.5 million Jews who observe kosher. The 19,000 kosher food products is in contrast to the 1,000 recorded in 1977.

Shmuel Adler

Chazzan Chaim Adler

Cantor brothers Arie and Yair Subar

Annual OTI concert stars four chazzans

The Ottawa Torah Institute will present its 6th Annual Yom Yerushalayim Cantorial Concert on Tuesday, June 5 at 7:30 p.m. in the Grand Hall of the Canadian Museum of Civilization.

The concert will feature world renowned Chazzan Chaim Adler of the B.A.Y.T. Synagogue in Toronto, and his protégé, son Shmuel Adler.

Also appearing on the program are cantorial brothers Arie and Yair Subar of Montreal.

Renowned for his beautiful voice and heartfelt rendition of the prayer services since his youth, immediately following his bar-mitzvah Chazzan Adler led the Friday evening services in some of the largest congregations in Israel.

Formerly the chief chazzan of Tel Aviv, he has performed in concerts worldwide, including Australia, Mexico, New York, Miami, San Diego, Amsterdam, and the Great Concert Hall in Vienna, Austria.

His repertoire includes melodies from the Chassidic dynasties of Radomsk, Kvidinov and Boyen as well as a broad range of Chassidic and popular Jewish music and Chazzanus.

Jerusalem-born Cantors Arie and Yair Subar stem from a cantorial family. The brothers appeared as child prodigies all over Israel.

Both have served as congregational cantors for over 20 years in addition to recording a number of LPs and cassettes. At present Arie is serving as cantor at Congregation Beth Ora and Yair is the cantor of the Beth Tikva Synagogue.

Musical accompaniment will be provided by Ottawa's own Evelyn Greenberg.

This year's concert, as part of Jewish Music Festival Week, is being co-sponsored by the Canadian Museum of Civilization and the Jewish Community Centre.

Proceeds from the concert help support the Ottawa Torah Institute High School and Ottawa Torah Institute Adult Education Program as well as several other programs sponsored by O.T.I.

Tickets are available from the Ottawa Torah Institute, 151 Chapel Street (594-5658) or at local synagogues.

Supreme Court Justice to speak at June 7 B&P closing evening

The Honourable Madame Justice Beverley McLachlin will address the Business and Professional Group of Ottawa UJA Women's Division at a dinner meeting on Thursday, June 7, at congregation Machzikei Hadas, 2310 Virginia Drive.

The reception will begin at 5:15 p.m., followed by dinner at 6:15 p.m.

The third woman to be appointed to the Supreme Court of Canada, Madame Justice McLachlin was appointed on March 30, 1989. She will speak on the place and impact of women in the legal profession.

Born in Pincher Creek, Alberta on September 7, 1943, Madam Justice McLachlin graduated from the University of Alberta with a B.A. (1965) and an M.A. and LL.B. in 1968.

She received several awards and scholarships in law school including the Board of Governors of the University of Alberta Scholarship in Law; the Abe W. Miller Memorial Prize in Criminal Law; the Sydney B. Woods Memorial Prize in Constitutional Law and the Horace Harvey Gold Medal in Law.

She was admitted to the Bar of Alberta in 1969 and the Bar of British Columbia in 1971.

Madam Justice McLachlin was appointed to the County Court of Vancouver in 1981.

Weidman exhibit will continue

The exhibition 'Dancers in Motion III', watercolours by Carol Weidman, will be on display in Le Salon of the National Arts Centre until May 28.

The Weidman exhibit has been extended to coincide with the appearance by the National Ballet of Canada at the end of May.

The exhibit is a co-production of the artist and the Dance Department of the NAC.

Madame Justice Beverley McLachlin

and, later the same year, was appointed to the Supreme Court of British Columbia.

In 1985 she was appointed to the B.C. Court of Appeal.

In September 1988 she became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of British Columbia.

Prior to her appointment to the Bench she had practiced law in Fort St. John, British Columbia and was associated with the firm of Bull, Housser and Tupper in Vancouver (1972 to 1975). She was also affiliated with the Faculty of Law at the University of British Columbia, an Associate Professor.

Madam Justice McLachlin is bilingual and the author of several legal articles, texts and casebooks.

The evening is 1989-90 season finale of the B&P group. Anyone wishing further information should call Pauline E. Parkowski at 232-7306.

*An ache in the heartA mother's fear over her children intermarrying

By Phyllis Klasky Karas

BOSTON (JTA) — West and at my father's grave, my mother, my husband and I, and we recite separately the individual prayers to honor my father's memory.

I am especially moved this year, the second year that I have stood at my father's grave, by the meaning of the words I recite.

As I promise, at his graveside, to perpetuate the ideals important to him, my thoughts wander to my own two sons.

Yes, I have done what was expected of me as a Jewish daughter of a man to whom Judaism was vitally important, to whom the state of Israel was the most precious gift and most serious obligation ever offered to a Jew. I have married a Jewish man, kept a kosher home, supported Israel and raised my two sons in a traditional Jewish home.

I have kept the endless link strong and firm. Yet, it is this that worries me so strongly. Will my two sons continue as two strong links, joining one generation to another? Or will they splinter and destroy this link that their grandfather so cherished?

Or to put it more simply, will they marry Jewish women and honor their parents as I have honored mine?

The answer to these questions haunts me these days. All around me, I have seen too many children of my friends and my cousins marry Christians. I have seen the children of parents who did exactly as I did, who educated their children in Hebrew schools, supported Israel, maintained kosher kitchens, espoused Jewish values, and watched helplessly as their children fell in love with non-Jews.

In my typically compulsive manner, I have analyzed each individual case of intermarriage and tried to find a common link, some small message that could help me avoid the same situation, that could help me guide my two sons past such a painful happening.

It has taken me a while to reach my conclusion; however, the answer to my question is finally clear. There is no common thread; nor is there a magic formula waiting to be followed. Sheer luck or the lack of it, a mere roll of the dice seems to be the answer here, and it is an answer I find especially hard to swallow.

I have spoken to parents who have told me that intermarriage is simply unacceptable in their families, that they will neither condone nor attend such a wedding among their children.

I have even listened to one cousin, whose two daughters are both beneath the ages of 10, state firmly and in no-nonsense language that he personally will not attend the weddings of any relatives whose children intermarry.

"This simply gives tacit approval to such a marriage," he told me. "Therefore, I have to make a stand. Don't invite me to any of those weddings. I don't want to be there."

Unlike my cousin, I have attended too many of these weddings lately. Always, along with the bride and the groom, there rests an ache in my heart that doesn't lessen, even with the presence of a beautiful bride, a handsome groom, delicious food and a spirited band. I have studied the looks on the faces of the families of the bride and the groom, and there, always, I see the strains of fear and worry intermingled with the glow of pride and joy.

When I return from these weddings — held at country clubs and lovely restaurants, some with rabbis and ministers officiating, others merely with justices of the peace — I find myself overwhelmed with the need to speak to my sons. At ages 21 and 17, neither one of them is thinking marriage, yet each one of them has had some sort of involvement with a non-Jewish girl.

"Do you honestly think you could someday marry a girl who isn't Jewish?" I question, and mostly they just stare at me as if I had asked them how many children they expected to raise.

"Well, it will break my heart if you do," I answer their shrugs.

Sometimes I launch into a monologue about the importance of Judaism to their father and me; and, sometimes, I just

Will my two sons continue as two strong links, joining one generation to another? Or will they splinter and destroy this link that their grandfather so cherished?

leave the room hoping that the look of misery on my face when I even mention the word "intermarriage" will frighten them away from such an act.

But I am not as naive as I sometimes seem. No, I understand the ways of today's world. I see the secular worlds in which my sons move and I accept the lion's share of the blame for this lifestyle. It was with great joy that I noted that each of the colleges which my sons attend contains at least 15 percent Jewish students. Still, I have met their closest friends and the Tonys and Chrises share equal billing with the Jasons and Adams.

When one son says he has a date with a Kristen, my heart sinks. When the other one says he met someone named Rachel, I walk around singing for a week.

When my niece married a lovely Jewish boy and decided to honor his commitment to a kosher kitchen, I felt a rush of pride and joy that has lasted for over two years now. This beautiful couple is my hope, my strength in a religious scene that all too often disappoints and frightens me.

Perhaps my cousin is correct. Perhaps I should not attend any weddings that are not between members of the same religion. Yet, I know how impossible it would be for me to follow such an arrangement.

So, instead, I will use all my strength to grasp the link that has bound one generation of Jews to another. And until the day comes when someone will offer me a magic formula guaranteed to produce children who will marry only Jews, I will bully and cajole and beg and pray whenever I find the opportunity. That is part of my job as a Jewish mother, and like all the others before me, I will perform to the best of my ability.

Jewish Singles Registry records very positive 1st year results

June marks the first anniversary of the Ottawa office of the Jewish Singles Registry and Director Michael Shaffer is pleased with the results of the program to date.

"We have registered 60 singles, all have had dates, and we've had two marriages and one baby to boot."

For most of its initial year Ottawa members dated Montrealers (the Montreal J.S.R. has 700 members). Recently, as local membership has grown, Ottawans have dated each other more often. Shaffer sees both intra-city and inter-city dating as meeting the needs of Ottawa singles.

"Most people prefer not to travel to Montreal to date. They prefer the frequency of contact dating an Ottawan allows," he says.

"Others feel they've exhausted their local singles contacts and want to expand their horizons. Thus Montreal, Toronto, and New York (in the discussion stages) become further options.

The question Shaffer is asked most often is "What type of members do you have?"

Shaffer answers "People just like you — a professional or business person, well adjusted, (perhaps well known in the community) and wishing to create another avenue of meeting for themselves."

"I'm constantly trying to destigmatize the Registry," Shaffer says. "We respect the confidentiality of our members but if I could list their names in this article my phone would be ringing off the hook tomorrow."

"We've pretty much broken the stigma in Montreal where, as people have quality dates, they spread the word to family and friends. We appreciate the local co-operation of Machzikei Hadas, Temple Israel, and Beth Shalom in mentioning our service in their bulletins.

"All told, I am expecting the Ottawa Registry to more than double its membership this year."

Shaffer states that members are pleased with the Registry's introduction system. Questionnaires and optional video interviews are available to them to assist in making dating choices.

Members either choose their own dates or accept his recommendations. In both cases interest must be mutual before an initial phone conversation takes place.

Shaffer says that the introduction of a video option has been fairly popular.

"It's a flexible option. About half our members make one. Those who choose not to are still able to use them to make dating choices, and date just as often. It's an added feature of our service."

Most Registry members are 20-45 years old (men outnumbering women 60% to 40%). Women outnumber men in the 45+ group. To compensate discounts are being offered to women.

Overall Shaffer sums up the year as a good first one.

Economic needs

it was the "natural" thing to do. He said that in earlier years, it was difficult for Soviet Jews to choose Israel because it was painted as a "black" country by the Soviet news media.

"On television, all they showed was how in Israel there were wars all the time and how terribly hot it was," he said. But things changed favorably when the Soviet Union began allowing Jews to tour Israel. The tourists returned with upbeat reports.

"Now, people have a better perspective," Grisha said.

Looking around his small apartment in Mevasseret Zion, he said, "I think I chose correctly."

Yona Katz, in Israel for three weeks, came to Israel because she thought her invalid husband could get better medical care here and because "we knew that in America there is anti-Semitism."

Whether they are telling the truth or have adopted this positive outlook because they are already in Israel, these immigrants seem sincerely committed to making it where they are.

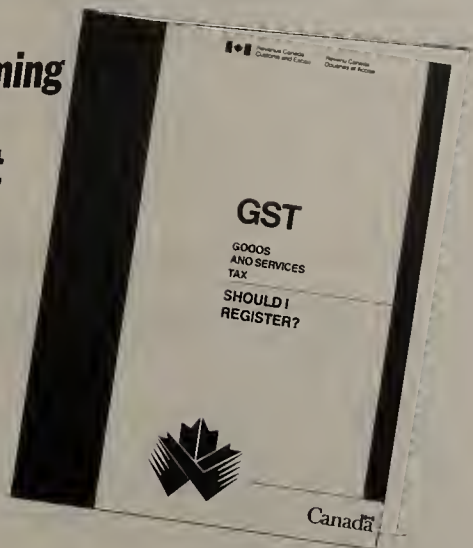

The seriousness of their attitude and the strength of their drive to succeed sometimes amuses those working with them.

"My Hebrew class was very upset one day when we cancelled class one afternoon and had a party. They complained to me, saying 'What? No more studies?' " said Galia Lando, the ulpan teacher.

"We will have a 10-day vacation during Passover," she said. "My students are already anxiously asking whether we will make those days up."

The new Soviet Aliyah

Economic needs taking precedence over politics

(Part 2 Of A Series)

By Allison Kaplan
JERUSALEM (JTA) — Recent Soviet Jewish immigrants aren't very eager to talk politics.

Right now, they are interested mainly in the policies of the Israeli government that will help or hinder them in their quest for a successful life in Israel.

Former prisoner of Zion Natan Sharansky is a case in point. Since immigrating to Israel four years ago, he has chosen not to lend his prestige to any single political party. Instead, he cultivates relations with all parties in order to achieve the goals of his advocacy group, the Soviet Jewry Zionist Forum.

Like Sharansky before them, Soviet Jews settling in Israel today only talk about such things as the future of the administered territories and the "Who is a Jew" controversy to the extent that these issues directly affect their lives.

Face the situation

In one sense, the immigrants learning Hebrew at the Mevasseret Zion absorption centre must literally face the situation on the West Bank every day. The windows of their classroom look right into hills that lie beyond Israel's 1967 border.

Felix Kramer and his wife, Natasha, who have been in Israel for six months, have considered living in the administered territories, situated just beyond their doorstep.

Despite his short time in Israel, Felix already has formed an opinion on the future of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"I think they are Israeli territory," he said. "There already is a Palestinian state — Jordan. How many Arab countries do they need to have?"

Frankly, Kramer said, he can't understand why Americans, particularly American Jews, are so interested in which side of the so-called Green Line he chooses to live on.

"It seems they are more worried about the Arabs than about us," said Kramer, a serious-looking, balding man whose young son clings to his trousers.

Dangerous in Hebron

"It's a little dangerous to live in Hebron," Natasha admitted. "But there is a possibility of going to Kiryat Arba," the large Jewish settlement located adjacent to Hebron.

The source of some of the Kramers' political education was more readily visible when a Canadian friend, fellow immigrant Howard Grief, revealed that before immigrating, he was a leader of the Canadian affiliate of the Tehiya party, which favors expansion of Jewish settlements in the territories.

Grief was excited to be undergoing the absorption process along with the new Soviet immigrants. "Yigal Allon once said, 'Give me 1 million Jews, and we can keep Judea and Samaria.'"

"The demographic argument against Israel keeping Judea and Samaria will now be destroyed," he said. "Even if the Soviet Jews don't go there immediately, the demographics will change."

Only a small percentage of Soviet Jews have chosen to settle in the West Bank until now. But how many will seek housing there in the long term is still an open question.

Trying to attract

The mayor of the West Bank settlement of Ariel, Ron Nachmann, loudly defying U.S. wishes, is aggressively trying to attract Soviets to his settlement. He has been bringing Soviet immigrants to his settlement with very limited success, far from the large numbers he would like.

"Our class took a trip to Ariel," said Galia Lando, who teaches Hebrew to Soviet immigrants in Rishon le-Zion. "They were polite, but when we came back home, nobody seemed interested in settling there. They said it looked like a lonely place."

"Anyone who wants can go there," said Leonid, a student in the ulpan class. "But nobody wants to go there."

Leonid, who asked that his last name not be used, explained that the West Bank settlements seem isolated to many Soviet newcomers. Moreover, he believes the immigrants' desire for a secure future cannot be satisfied in the face of Palestinian hostility.

If Soviet Jews move to the West Bank in significant numbers, it will not be because of a government initiative or their own ideological beliefs. More likely, it will be the same force that drives many Israelis to move there: sheer economic necessity.

But even the Soviets with no intention of moving to the West Bank highly resent the prospect of being restricted from living in any part of the country. As in every other aspect of life, they want the freedoms and privileges of any other Israeli.

It is for the same reason that an Interior Ministry requirement that immigrants must prove their Jewishness before being registered as Jews has become a sore point with the Soviet newcomers.

Threatened demonstrations

In mid-February, Sharansky's Soviet Jewry Zionist Forum threatened demonstrations if clerks at the Interior Ministry continued to demand documented proof of the immigrants' Jewishness.

Mariana Zhoutyan, an English teacher from Kishinev, has been here a month. Because of her fluency in English, she is optimistic about landing a good job. The questioning of her Jewishness is a blot on her mainly optimistic feelings about life in Israel.

"I left my birth certificate in my office in the Soviet Union," she said. "I am afraid now to go to try to get an identity card for myself, my mother and my children."

Her fear stems from the experiences of a neighbor.

"He is a blind man, 61 or 62 years old. When he went to the Ministry of the Interior," she said, "he didn't have his own birth certificate, but he had his daughter's saying that he was a Jew."

Despite this, the clerk at the ministry would not register him as a Jew. He was extremely upset, Mariana said.

Mariana shook her head, pointing out the "absurdity" of suffering discrimination in the Soviet Union and then having her Judaism questioned in Israel.

While many of the Soviet newcomers are not yet ardent Zionists, the fear that many of them are simply using Israel as a way station for the United States seems unwarranted.

Few of the recent immigrants in Israel will say that America was their first choice and that they went to Israel because it was an easier route out of the Soviet Union.

Chosen voluntarily

Though their Zionist and religious education has been minimal, most profess to have chosen Israel voluntarily. Some have become born-again Jewish nationalists after suffering anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union.

If they were not originally convinced that Israel should be their destination, they are convincing themselves now that they are in the right place.

Grisha Lubarski, a young physician from the Ukraine, said he came to Israel because

Governor General Hnatyshyn opens 'Coat' exhibit

In a ceremony held at the Canadian Museum of Civilization on April 4, Governor General Ramon John Hnatyshyn officially opened the exhibition "A Coat of Many Colours."

On display at the Museum until September 16, the exhibition explores the rich traditions of Canada's Jewish Community -- from the Jewish involvement in Canada's burgeoning fur trade in the late 18th century to the challenges faced by recent immigrants.

At the helm of this three-year project is Andrea Bronfman, national co-chair of the Canadian Friends of Beth Hatefutsoth. The exhibition has been a co-production with the organization and the museum.

Focusing on three questions,

- Where can we live?;
 - How can we put our talents to use?; and
 - Continuity and Contribution: How can we maintain our community and contribute to Canada?;
- the exhibition's 300 artifacts give an intimate, personal view of Jewish Canadian life in all its dimensions.

Videotaped interviews

Many of the exhibition's artifacts are brought to life through videotaped interviews which have been collected by the exhibition Guest Curator Sandra Morton Weizman.

Ms. Morton Weizman travelled across the country interviewing many of the exhibitions' lenders and contributors.

Through the use of headphones, visitors explore much of the history behind the artifacts as well as intimate experiences of Jewish life. Such celebrities as Monty Hall and Barbara Frum are included in the video clips.

Religious and ritual material is present throughout the exhibition. At the same time it underscores the point that Judaism is not simply defined by religion, but by ethnic and cultural considerations diversities.

The exhibition also explores the Jewish sense of community and how longstanding concerns for social justice have helped Jews assume a leadership role in Canada's social development.

Examines differences

As well, it examines differences within the Canadian Jewish community, from isolated families in rural Canada to large, vibrant Jewish communities in Montreal and Toronto.

A number of activities in conjunction with the exhibition opening have already taken place. A fundraising gala, organized by the Canadian Friends of Beth Hatefutsoth, was held on March 31 in the Museum's Grand Hall. In attendance were Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and his wife, Mila, as well as Rosalie Abella acting as master of ceremonies.

A book written by Ms. Abella's husband Irving and a stamp issued by Canada Post commemorating multicultural-

FEATURING THE BETH SHALOM HIGH HOLY DAYS CHOIR

Choirmaster Al Shapiro

Message delivered by
His Excellency Israel Gur-Arieh
Ambassador of Israel to Canada on the occasion of
Yom Ha'Atzmaut

We celebrate today the 42nd Anniversary of the Independence of Israel, the State of the Jewish People, and in spite of all the hardships and the difficult problems we face, we have to rejoice and be thankful for this unique and extraordinary creation of our People, a People, dispersed and persecuted for two thousand years, a People who came out of the ashes of the Holocaust. The revival of the Jewish State is our major achievement of our history. It is the creation of a great People, and unique in the annals of mankind. It is the greatest historical feat any people could have achieved. No one gave Israel as a gift to the Jewish People. Thousands and thousands, made the ultimate sacrifice, gave their lives so that never again shall we be defenseless, never again at the mercy of our enemies.

We are rightfully proud of our accomplishments, and we are rightfully proud of having demonstrated the success of our national ideal, of Zionism.

But there is still much to do.

This year, on this celebration of the sovereignty of the State of Israel, we still have grave problems, internal and external. We are still threatened by cruel and dangerous enemies. And yet, as we have overcome many grave challenges in the past, we will come out successfully from the present difficulties as well.

The 42nd Anniversary of the State of Israel is marked by extraordinary events of our history. The Soviet Jews who, for 70 years, were denied preservation and development of their culture, of their religious and national aspirations, are at long last free to come to Israel, and they are coming by the tens of thousands. Not just to another country, but to their own home and haven. They are received with brotherly love by Israel, and they have the support of the Jewish people from all over the world. We should remember this year for this remarkable turn of our history. The ingathering of Jews from the Soviet Union, from Ethiopia, from countries in Latin America and from many other countries of the world is of utmost importance, not only for Israel, but for Jews everywhere.

In the Land of Israel they will regain the unique national, cultural and spiritual greatness and will again, together with all the Israelis, be an inexhaustible fountain of faith, hope, creativity and redemption for the whole Jewish People.

On this very special holiday, on this Yom Ha'Atzmaut, let us be thankful for the existence of Israel, for the strength of Israel — our bastion, our common security, our pride. Thousands of years ago, our Prophet Amos promised us and said: "Behold, the days will come said the Lord, when the ploughman shall overtake the reaper, and the treacher of grapes, him that soweth seed, and the mountains shall drop sweet wine, and the hills shall melt, and I will bring my People of Israel from captivity and they shall build cities and inhabit them, and they shall plant vineyards and make gardens and eat the fruits, and I will plant them upon their land and they shall no more be pulled out of their land which I have given them, said the Lord thy G-D."

Our generation is the happy one, the privileged one, the one which is witnessing the realization of this prophecy. Let us rejoice!

Hag Sameach.

1200 people celebrate Israel's birthday!

By Estelle Melzer

Yom Ha'Atzmaut 1990 in Ottawa was an event which brought this city's Jewish community together in an overwhelming display of solidarity with Israeli. 1200 people gathered at Agudath Israel Synagogue on Sunday evening, April 29 to celebrate Israel's 42nd anniversary of independence, more than fulfilling the hope of Yom Ha'Atzmaut Chairpersons Ruth Kahane and Harvey Goldberg that our love of Israel would unite all the segments of our community into one "chavura."

The theme of this year's celebration, Kol Yisrael Chaverim, achieved dramatic realization.

The evening began with a moving Yom Ha'Zikaron ceremony on the synagogue front lawn. Master of Ceremonies Danny Friedmen began by explaining that, in Israel's short history, the bitter and the sweet have often been mixed. Thus, the abrupt change of mood from the sadness of Yom Ha'Zikaron, when Israel mourns its war dead, to the joy of Yom Ha'Atzmaut, when Israel celebrates its creation, reflects the reality of Israeli life.

The Yom Ha'Zikaron service began with the lighting of two memorial flames, one in memory of those who died, one in the hope that no more Israeli soldiers would have to die. It ended with a poignant song of peace, The Last War, movingly sung by Barbara Solomon Brown, and a prayer for the State of Israel.

The sound of a siren marked the shift from sadness to joy. With a blast of music, youngsters carrying Israeli flags swept into view, marched through the crowd and led a parade into the synagogue for the Yom Ha'Atzmaut festivities.

Children were the focus of the celebration this year. The Hillel Academy Choir performed an Israeli song medley, then unfurled a banner proudly declaring Am Yisrael Chai (the people of Israel live).

The featured entertainers for the evening were a Montreal children's Israeli folkdance troupe called Sherashim, under the direction of Jeff Simboli.

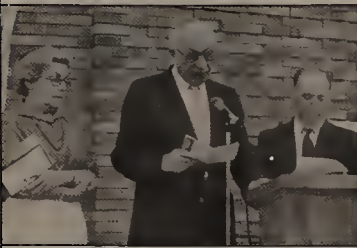

These 43 youngsters, ranging in age from 7-13, literally had the bimah of the synagogue shaking with their energy and ruach. They twirled, stamped, turned cartwheels, and flew through the air in a sophisticated program of dances that belied their age. At the end of their performance they urged the audience to join them in "Dizengoff Circle" at the back of the auditorium for Israel dancing.

The evening ended with an Israeli-style street party. The synagogue had been transformed for the evening into an Israeli Yom Ha'Atzmaut street scene. Decorations Chairman Eva Cohen had created a dramatic background of blue and white with 33 Israeli flags and 500 mini-flags strung across the walls.

Various displays gave a taste of different parts of Israel. People placed birthday greetings to Israel on the "Kotel." (All messages will be sent to the kotel in Israel.) Children created a forest of trees at the Canada Park mural.

Ottawa's link to Neot Herzl, its project renewal community in Israel, was explained through a video of greetings from the people of Neot Herzl to Ottawa. Ottawans also sent greetings to Neot Herzl in a video which was made at Yom Ha'Atzmaut.

Munching Israeli delicacies from the "Carmel Shouk," browsing through the Israeli art in "Old Jaffa," the Magen David Adam display, or the J.N.F. Stamp collection, dancing in "Dizengoff Circle," or just socializing, the huge crowd was transformed into an Israeli-style street party. It was a joyful ending to Israel's 42nd birthday.

Reflections from the President's Desk
By Ralph Kassie
President, Jewish Community Centre

R.K. in D.C....J.W.B. Now J.C.C.A. ...90s Short of $

Having just returned from the JCC Biennial Convention in Washington, D.C., where I was privileged to meet with 1400 fellow Jewish Community Centre delegates from Canada, the U.S.A., Europe and Israel, I am proud to announce that your Ottawa JCC is in the forefront of recognizing the upcoming trends in our needs for the 90s.

This convention marked the 100th anniversary of the Jewish Centre movement. At this event, the Jewish Welfare Board (JWB), the umbrella organization for the JCC movement, officially changed its name to the Jewish Community Centre Association (JCCA), a progressive name change for "Century 2."

At a forum and workshop series on the subject of Planning, it was noted that significant changes are going to occur, whether we like them or not. To ignore, for example, that the intermarriage rate, well below 5% in the 1950s and 60s, is now at 33% in most American communities, and more than 80% in California, is to commit institutional suicide.

Other fast growing segments of our population which must be recognized for Centres to survive are empty nesters, the well elderly and non-traditional households, particularly those consisting of single individuals. In most communities, fewer than 25% of our Jewish population live in a traditional Jewish household consisting of husband, wife, and children. A far greater percentage of households consist of those not yet married, between marriages, widowed, or remarried with children from different marriages living in a reconstituted family.

We must view these groups as consumers of Centre services, not as Centre members in the traditional sense.

We have identified that, increasingly, they want to consume the following: Jewish educational programming, Jewish cultural arts programming and wellness programming (including nutrition, anti-smoking clinics and physiological counselling). If you have been paying attention, you will have noted that the Ottawa JCC is in the midst of addressing these very issues now, and has moved to facilitate these needs.

Although Jewish programming is essential, the Centre cannot rest on Jewish programming alone as a lure for potential customers. Our programs and services must be perceived to be excellent in themselves.

The 90s bring a need for more sophisticated marketing which will build our cultural commitment and increase the knowledge base concerning the Centre.

Membership fees make no sense in today's marketplace. User fees for selective services are more sensible and realistic. Our JCC will be moving in this direction.

Volunteer recruitment and training need attention. We must convince our constituents that we are not elitist or bogged down in petty politics. We must assign definitive tasks and eliminate meetings and committees.

Finally, the main concern of centres will be fundraising. With the needs of Operation Exodus, the resettlement of Soviet Jews in Israel, in the forefront for the next 3-5 years, we can expect a hold on capital expansions. As well, because UJA campaigns are flat or shrinking, our allocations will likewise diminish. Therefore, the Centre will have to look to new sources of funding to survive. Ideas like endowments for specific programs, corporate sponsorships and in-house fundraising on our own must be considered.

The Washington experience left us feeling good about ourselves in that we have recognized all the above critical issues here at our Ottawa Centre. We also received the respect of our peers, as you will note on the Centrefold pages this month.

Our congratulations to Dalia Blumenthal and Doug Nathanson, our youth representatives at the concurrent youth conclave in D.C. Congratulations to our Director of Information, Estelle Melzer, on two fronts: firstly, her JCCA award for Centrefold, the JCC newspaper, as Best Centre Newspaper; and secondly, for the superb Yom Ha'Atzmaut celebrations she co-ordinated.

Please join me at our annual JCC General Meeting and Awards Evening on June 6. It will be fun and you will honor the volunteers that make our community great. See you at the Centre.

Centrefold wins Best Newspaper honours at JCCA conference

Centrefold a winner!

Over 1400 delegates from North America, Europe and Israel recently gathered in Washington, D.C. to attend the JWB Biennial and celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Jewish Community Centre movement.

The Jewish Welfare Board (JWB), which changed its name at the Conference to the Jewish Community Centre Association, is the umbrella organization for over 300 Jewish Community Centres and Y's. Delegates came together to share information, discuss planning and trends, and honour achievements in the JCC movement.

The Jewish Community Centre of Ottawa found that it had many reasons to celebrate and shep naches.

Centrefold wins award

Centrefold, the newspaper of the Jewish Community Centre of Ottawa, received the Award for Excellence in Communications as best JCC newspaper. Centrefold is edited by Estelle Melzer and published monthly, originally as an insert in the Ottawa Jewish Bulletin & Review, and currently, as the centre pages of the OJBR. The citation noted that Centrefold has "achieved excellence in the ongoing effort to enhance the promotion and public interpretation of the Jewish Community Centre movement as a major instrument for Jewish continuity."

Ron Boro, Executive Director of the Ottawa JCC, was elected chairman of the JCCA Intermediate City's Executive Conference which will take place in February 1991.

Ralph Kassie, President of the Ottawa JCC, was elected treasurer of the Board of Canadian Council of the JCCA. The council is responsible for setting policy, providing workshops on a national scale, and generally promoting networking among the far-flung JCCs in Canada.

Two Ottawa teens, Dalia Blumenthal and Doug Nathanson, attended the concurrent Youth Leadership Conference in Washington.

Dalia was selected by her peers to give the report to the JCCA delegates on the activities of the youth conference.

For Ottawa delegates, the JWB Biennial was an opportunity to share ideas, compare progress and take pride in the achievements of our own JCC.

Irving Rivers to receive JCC's Ben Karp Volunteer Service Award

By Estelle Melzer

The first recipient of the Jewish Community Centre's Ben Karp Volunteer Service Award is Irving Rivers.

This award, the highest honour the JCC can bestow, will be officially presented to Mr. Rivers at the JCC Annual Meeting and Awards night on June 6, at 7:00 p.m. at 151 Chapel Street. The community is invited to attend.

A lifetime volunteer, Irving Rivers exemplifies all the ideals of commitment, caring and involvement associated with the namesake of this award, Ben Karp.

Mr. Rivers, like Mr. Karp, has made volunteerism an integral part of his life.

In many ways, Irving Rivers is an Ottawa institution. His store, Irving Rivers Ltd. — We Corner the Market, has been a unique landmark in the Byward Market for 40 years.

As a volunteer in the Ottawa Jewish community, he has also been an institution. In some ways his volunteer career resembles his store — packed with a mindboggling variety of activities, hands-on, personal, and coloured with the unique Irving Rivers style.

His involvement has a long history. As a youngster he was an active participant in Young Judea, and A.Z.A. He graduated to B'nai Brith, becoming president of Ottawa Lodge in 1953.

He is still active on the Camp B'nai Brith and Scholarship committees of B'nai Brith.

His willingness to take charge and give of his time and boundless energy led him into many roles.

He had "the unique privilege" of being the only male president in the history of the Hillel Academy PTA. He also served as a troop leader of the "old" 39th Scout Troop in its heyday.

He served on the board of the old Adath Jeshurun Synagogue and was president of Beth Shalom Synagogue. He is the immediate past president of the Ottawa Jewish National Fund and is on the board of Israel Bonds.

Irving Rivers also has a longtime association with the Jewish Community Centre. He became president of the JCC in 1976, the year that the Jewish Community Centre and the Ottawa Vaad Ha'Ir became separate entities. He helped shape the direction of the JCC in those first years and has been a steady influence on the board ever since.

He was, in many ways, "godfather" to the JCC Board. The members he brought onto the board went on to take executive responsibilities over the years.

He was also involved in starting up the JCC and Beth Shalom bingo, one of the Centre's prime avenues of revenue. For years he took responsibility for recruiting bingo workers and was always available to work the bingo himself.

He was chairman of the JCC Mikvah committee, the JCC Day Camp committee and was the Centre's representative on the Vaad Ha Kashrut.

A dedicated family man, Irving Rivers and his late wife Ethel had three daughters, Jacqui Vital of Jerusalem, Ilka Kamen of Toronto and Ellen Oster of Ottawa, and eight grandchildren. He is currently married to Evelyn Rivers.

Looking back on his long career of volunteerism, Irving Rivers commented that "people get involved in volunteer work because they're selfish. They get paid," he continued. "Their payment is in personal satisfaction."

Our community has been greatly enriched by Irving Rivers' "selfishness." The Jewish Community Centre is very pleased to present its first Ben Karp Volunteer Service Award to Irving Rivers, the man who "corners the market" on volunteerism.

Overflow crowd helps open drop-in centre

By Ricki Baker

JCC Seniors Co-ordinator
On Tuesday, April 24, Bet Chavura Drop-In Centre had its official opening in its new location, the renovated Jewish Community Centre Adult Lounge. Two hundred excited seniors attended to welcome Jean Pigott as the special guest.

Mrs. Pigott, Chairman of the National Capital Commission, spoke about the joys and pleasures of living in the nation's capital. She met lots of old friends, and her charming and outgoing manner endeared her to everyone who came.

Music of Grey Jazz

After some refreshments, the overflow crowd enjoyed the music of Grey Jazz. This group of twenty musicians, singers, and dancers revived the Big Band sound and all its memories. These men and women are talented seniors who continue to make everyone who hears them feel just great!

It was, indeed, a day to remember. There were many familiar faces as well as many new ones at the opening of Bet Chavura. We look forward to

Rabbi will explore Jewish perspective on environment

Our consumer society has recently been brought to heel by the realization of the delicate balance that exists between humankind and our surroundings.

Does our Jewish heritage have anything to teach us on this subject matter? Would you like to know whether there is a particularly Jewish point of view on environmental issues?

Do you know about a new Jewish organization called Shomrei Adamah?

Rabbi Mordechai Lieblich
The Jewish Community of Ottawa is pleased to welcome to our midst Rabbi Mordechai Lieblich who will address the topic of Judaism and the environment from a Reconstructionist perspective. Rabbi Lieblich is currently the executive director of the Federation of Reconstructionist Congregations and Havurot.

Rabbi Lieblich was ordained at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College. He is on the Board of Directors of the P'Nai Or Religious Fellowship, the Centres for Jewish Renewal, and the Advisory Board of the National Havurah Committee. He also serves on the editorial boards of the Reconstructionist magazine and the New Menorah journal. He is co-author of The Shalom Seders.

The talk will take place on Sunday morning, June 10, 1990, 9:30 a.m., at the Jewish Community Campus, 881 Broadview, in the mini-gym. The $2.50 admission charge includes a light breakfast.

The community is invited to join for a discussion on a topic which is important for the survival of our planet. The program is being co-sponsored by the Ottawa Reconstructionist Havurah and the Jewish Community Centre. For further information contact Walter Hendelman (eve. 235-9414) or Diane Porah (day 232-7306).

JCCs' task is to 'provide memory'

—Reprinted from the JWB Biennial Daily, Friday, April 27, 1990

"There are two major liberation dramas going on in contemporary Jewish history," declared Rabbi David Hartman as he addressed the capacity crowd of more than 1,000 who packed the Independence Ballroom of the Grand Hyatt Hotel yesterday morning. He went on to speak of the failure of the Marxist-Leninist view of history that once "announced with pride the beginning of a classless, memoryless society." The failure of that ideology he attributed to its ignoring the significance of memory to human identity — an aspect of life that the Jewish people, at least until recently, have not ignored.

In North America, memory has also been compromised and victimized by a value system that puts great emphasis on the here and now, the "me" as opposed to the greater historical process of which "I" am but a small part. The task of the Centre, Hartman declared, "is to provide memory, to provide a 'preconscious' experience" — the kind of experience people used to imbibe at a very early age from their parents and grandparents and their communities — "to provide an environment where the zeydes and bobbes scream out from the walls. You have," Hartman said, "to give the American Jewish people back their memories."

Unlike America, the Middle East is "saturated by history." Hartman went on, using as an example the way in which the building of a road in Jerusalem was delayed for many days while government officials determined whether anything of archeological value might be lost in the process: in Israel, the "functional now" is often sacrificed in favor of memory, that is, the Jewish people's link with the past.

"Pride yourself on taking in a generation of Jews who grew up in an environment that speaks only of a functional now," Hartman told the JCC leaders, "and giving them a sense that there's a memory that defines identity."

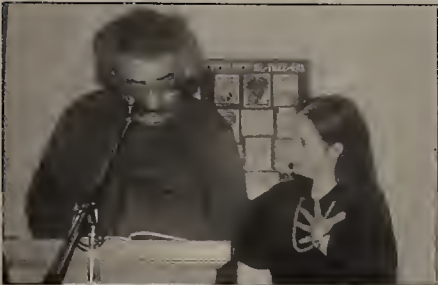

"How do you do this?" he added, admitting, "I don't know. It's not an easy task. You have an opportunity. You have a constituency of more than a million people."

"The task is great," he concluded. "But don't run away. Please, we need you."

By Abe Schwartz, JCC librarian and Sharon Drache, literary consultant, JCC Library

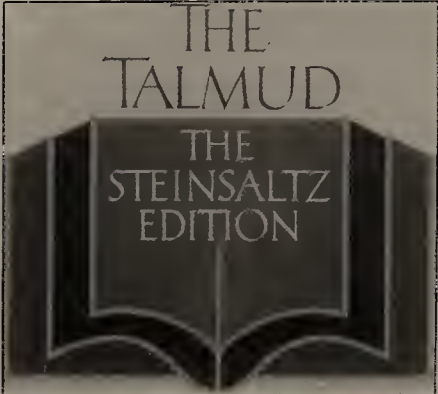

JCC library literary consultant Sharon Drache introduced writer and commentator Larry Zolf to an appreciative audience. Mr. Zolf gave a lively reading from his new book Scorpions for Sale at the Jewish Community Centre.

Library receives major gift

This past month the library of the Jewish Community Centre of Ottawa received the first two volumes of the Steinsaltz Edition of the Talmud. This extraordinary work is being published serially as the volumes become available.

This completely new English translation is being donated to the Library by Stephen and Linda (Greenberg) Signer in honour of Bernard and Sadie Signer of San Diego, California, parents of Stephen.

The Steinsaltz edition of the Talmud is a major publishing achievement which "...makes Judaism's great compendium of tradition, law and legend readily accessible to the modern English reader for the first time."

Each book is beautifully produced in a manner befitting its 1500-year-old tradition, with a full cloth binding, richly coloured jacket, gilt edges, and a page ribbon marker.

It is with the greatest of pride that we add this exceptional work to the shelves of our reference collection. We thank Dr. Stephen Signer, his wife Linda, and their children, Tamara, Iliana and Marissa, for their generous gift.

SLAPSHOT

The Year in Review

By Mark Kerzner,
Men's Hockey League Co-ordinator

The first year of the revival of the Jewish Men's Hockey League ended on April 30, 1990, and judging from the comments I have been hearing, it was a very successful program. Anyone interested in playing in next year's league is urged to call Greg Richards at the JCC, as preliminary discussions are now going on concerning next season's format.

The story of the playoffs is Yellow, more specifically, netminder Wayne Smith.

After a 0 and 5 start to the season, Wayne got on a roll, going undefeated in 7 of his last 10 games. More importantly, Wayne was red hot in the playoffs. After allowing 3 goals against in the first half of the first game, Wayne was beaten only two more times in the next two-and-a-half games, allowing one goal against in each of the final games of the semi-finals and the championship game.

Yellow defeated the league-leading White squad, who couldn't figure out how to score after leading the league in goals for. The final score was 5-1.

Congratulations go out to all the captains. Without their help the league would not have gotten off the ground. Thanks are extended to White's co-captains, Jeff Goldman and Mark Brotman, Blue's Mark Shore, Yellow's duo of John Dover and Joel Diener and Green's David Ross.

Other Notes...

Late in March, Seymour Diener suffered a great setback in a game against Blue. While skating innocently, Seymour took a tragic fall, crashing himself and the remainder of his season into the boards. By the time you read this, with a bit of luck, Seymour should be just about getting out of traction at the Queensway-Carleton Hospital and he will be returning to his family and home after 8 weeks.

He has a long rehabilitative journey ahead of him, and his family, friends and fellow hockey players wish him a full and speedy recovery. We all hope to see Seymour back playing hockey and softball real soon.

•Mazel Tov to Paul and Lisa Bodnoff on the birth of their son Ryan Edward.

•Mazel Tov also to Rob and Marjorie Snyder on the birth of their son.

It's good to see that Paul and Rob are already insuring the survival of the league by placing two candidates up for the draft of 2008.

•Thank You to head referee Dave Ahearn and his many assistants, Yvon, Claude, Kevin and Mike. The officiating was nothing less than excellent. They did a great job in keeping us under control.

•Thanks go to Hockey Night in Kanata Producer/Cameraman Michael Gossack for his video coverage of the final game. A VHS copy is available from Mark Kerzner.

Team Yellow fought off all opponents to win Jewish Men's Hockey League title.

JCC Theatre Arts Camp Director plans integrated arts program

By Estelle Melzer

The Jewish Community Centre is very pleased to announce that Dina Migoel will be its Director of Theatre Arts Camp for the third year.

Dina Migoel is a professional dancer and ballet teacher. Children who attended Theatre Arts Camp in previous years will remember her as the imaginative (and patient) ballet teacher who helped put together such an exciting summer. Her influence went far beyond the role of teaching ballet.

With the help of the other Theatre Arts instructors, Dina developed an integrated program in which every discipline — drama, jazz dance, ballet and fine arts — was directed towards one exciting goal, the BIG PRODUCTION.

Children made their own backdrops in fine arts, helped write dialogue in drama and worked on dance sequences in ballet and jazz.

Everyone had a role and got caught up in the excitement.

Dina Migoel

Listening skills and discipline were developed as even the youngest Theatre Artsers learned to "take your marks" and "wait for your cue."

Dina's rapport with youngsters has been developed through years of teaching ballet to all ages and skill levels. Currently she teaches in the Ottawa area, giving classes at the JCC, the University of Ottawa and several public schools. She has also taught at the Kanata School of Ballet and International Dance Studio.

In Toronto, she was a co-founder and partner in her own dance school, Dancer's Academy.

After a childhood spent partly in Israel, Dina trained for the ballet at the American School of Ballet in Los Angeles and the Boston School of Ballet. She danced professionally with the Boston Ballet Company.

Since turning to teaching she has attended teachers' seminars conducted at the American School of Ballet in New York, the National Ballet School of Canada and the Canadian College of Dancers.

Dina has strong ties to the Ottawa arts community. Currently she serves on the O.B.E. Advisory Committee of the Arts and is a member of the Canadian Conference for the Arts. She is also active with the Dance Transition Centre, an organization which helps dancers make the transition from a performing career to other options.

Day Camp '90 builds on the programs that made last summer great

By Gale Greenberg,
Program Co-ordinator

For some of you, Day Camp is still too far away to start thinking about (although we already have record-breaking registration.)

For those involved in planning Day Camp 1990, it has been a busy time. We have been planning this summer since Camp ended last season.

Last season went extremely well, so the recipe will not change much for this year.

Workshops were a big success last year and are back again, with cooking, crafts, and of course, the camp newspaper on the agenda.

Some Special Days will include: a Teddy Bear picnic at Brewer Park for the little guys;

Maccabiah; a picnic with Golden Agers; an evening program to include a pool splash and pizza party for those not quite ready for overnights; Carnival Day; a staff vs. parents softball game; and, of course, field trips.

To wrap up the season, campers will put on a talent show for their parents.

Of course, we still have lots of goodies up our sleeves. Surprises are always fun.

If your youngster loved last year, he's sure to enjoy this year of JCC Day Camp.

Places are going very fast. Don't be disappointed. Register now. Call the JCC at 232-7306.

Theatre Arts staff skilled at combining fun with learning

By Estelle Melzer

The JCC's instructors for Theatre Arts Camp 1990 each have two things in common: an enthusiasm for their craft and a strong rapport with kids. Theatre Arts Camp's philosophy is that children learn best when they are having a good time. Each of our instructors is experienced at making learning fun.

Sharon Pretty

Fine Arts instructor Sharon Pretty returns to Theatre Arts camp after a very successful season last year. She has also taught fine arts to children at various O.B.E. public schools and in the O.B.E. Lighthouse program.

Trained as a museologist and artist, she has worked for the Museum of Civilization, the National Film Board of Canada and as a freelance artist.

Jazz dance instructor Sylvie Charette is an experienced teacher of both children and adults. She is currently a dance teacher at the Academie de Danse de l'Outaouais and in the Protestant School Board of Western Quebec. She also co-ordinated Action '82 and '83, a dance, theatre and fine arts project.

Sylvie Charette

Drama instructor Nadia Petraraja is an enthusiastic performer and teacher of various theatre arts. She has an Honours Bachelor of Arts Degree in Drama in Education from the University of Windsor, a program which emphasizes using correlated arts in the classroom.

She has worked for the G.B.E. and Nepean Parks and Recreation as a children's drama instructor. She is also an accomplished mime, dancer, guitarist, singer, and actress, and has performed in both professional and amateur productions, in all these disciplines.

For the child looking for a different and challenging summer experience, Theatre Arts camp provides fun, friendship and learning. For more information call the JCC at 232-7306.

Outstanding teen volunteers win Israeli Bonds

With great pride and pleasure, the Jewish Community Centre announces that the first recipients of the Grossman-Klein Youth Volunteer Service Award are Ilana Blumenthal and Peter Swedko.

Established this year through the generosity of the Grossman-Klein families, this award is given to one male and one female teen annually in recognition of outstanding long-term volunteer achievement in the Jewish community.

Peter Swedko

The winners will each receive a $250 Israeli Bond, which will be presented at the JCC Annual Meeting and Awards Night on Wednesday, June 6 at 7:00 p.m. at 151 Chapel Street. Both Peter and Ilana fulfill the award's criteria of outstanding long-term volunteerism.

Ilana Blumenthal

Looking back on his volunteer "history", Peter Swedko, 18, concludes that "B.B.Y.O. got me involved."

He joined A.Z.A. Chapter Kinneret in grade 9 and has been on the executive ever since, taking on increasing roles of responsibility.

He was membership chairman, vice-president, and last year (1988-89), president of his chapter and president of the Ottawa Council of B.B.Y.O. This year he serves as regional vice-president. He also represented his chapter on the JCC's Jewish Teen Leadership Council.

Asked to describe what the job of president entails, Peter said that "for me it mainly meant a lot of phoning and a lot of running around. It's a public relations job to a large extent," he continued. "You do a lot of personal publicity, recruiting of volunteers, and making sure that your recruits are doing their jobs."

"When I joined Kinneret, the chapter was just starting to come together," he remembers. "When I became president, we had a membership high of 18. A year later our membership was 50."

A lot of that membership recruitment took place through another volunteer project Peter was heavily involved in, the JCC Theatreworks production of Grease.

Peter had been deeply involved in all three Theatreworks plays. He was assistant musical director for Fiddler On The Roof, co-director for Grease and assistant director for this year's production of Little Shop of Horrors.

During the rehearsals for Grease, he helped interest virtually the entire cast in joining B.B.Y.O., beginning the revival of B.B.Y.O. in Ottawa.

Peter is the son of Norman and Elsa Swedko. He is a grade 13 student at Sir Robert Borden High School and hopes to go to Western University next year, with medicine as his long-term goal.

Ilana Blumenthal, 18, became involved in volunteering in the Jewish community after her bat mitzvah. "My parents were worried that after my bat mitzvah was over, that would be all. They urged me to join a Jewish youth group. I joined four," she said with a smile, "Kadimah (U.S.Y.), Habonim-Dror, the JCC youth programs and B.B.Y.O."

"B.B.Y.O. stuck," she concluded, although she also had a strong involvement with Dror-Habonim over the years.

Like Peter, she quickly took on increasing degrees of responsibility in B.B.Y.O. She became chapter treasurer, then vice-president, and finally, this year, president of B.B.G. B'Yachad.

In her vice-presidential year, B'Yachad won the prestigious Miriam Albert Chapter Award, B.B.G.'s highest award for overall chapter excellence.

This year, with a membership of 68, strong fundraising results, and a variety of creative programs, B'Yachad has high hopes of winning the Miriam Albert Award again.

Ilana also spent a lot of time at the Dror-Habonim Ken and at Camp Geshar as a counsellor.

She has volunteered at Hillel Lodge and for the last few years has worked at the Ottawa Modern Jewish School, teaching nursery.

"I volunteer because I enjoy it," Ilana concludes. "You learn a lot of leadership skills, and it's fun."

Ilana, 18, is in grade 13 at Hillcrest High School. She plans to go to York University in the fall for a Degree in Education. A year of study in Israel is also on her agenda. Long-term goals, she says, "will definitely involve working with kids." She is the daughter of David and Cynthia Blumenthal.

The Jewish Community Centre proudly salutes two outstanding teens, Peter Swedko and Ilana Blumenthal, our 1990 Grossman-Klein Youth Service Award winners.

JCC raises flag at City Hall

The Jewish Community Centre hosted students from Hillel Academy, Golden Age members, Ottawa aldermen and MPs, as well as members of the general community on April 30, 1990 at City Hall for a flag-raising ceremony in honour of Israel's 42nd year of independence.

Over 150 people were present as Mayor Jim Durrell brought greetings and best wishes from the City of Ottawa, followed by remarks by Dr. Eli Rabin, President of the Ottawa Vaad Ha'ir and by David Walzer of the Embassy of Israel. Ralph Kassie, President of the Jewish Community Centre, then invited everyone outside for the raising of the flag of Israel and the singing of Hatikvah and O Canada.

Everyone enjoyed refreshments and a P'chaim, rounding off a very pleasant Yom Ha'Atzmaut celebration.

No Balm in Gilead: A Personal Retrospective of Mandate Days in Palestine

By Sylva M. Gelber

Carleton University Press, 284 pages; $24.95 (cloth) $19.95 (paper)

Sylva Gelber, one of Canada's leading federal government officials, was born in Toronto in December, 1910. However, her distinguished career in the civil service did not begin until the 1950s.

No Balm in Gilead, a rambling first person memoir, tells us why.

Prominent family

It was not easy being born into one of Toronto's most prominent Jewish families with four brilliant sons and only one brilliant daughter. It was difficult attending a private, primarily white Anglo-Saxon Protestant girls' school.

Trying to get into New York's Barnard College was also disappointing when you were glibly informed that the Jewish quota had already been filled.

But even more challenging was Gelber's feisty battle for women's rights before the issues had been clearly recognized and defined. She was a tough, wily woman whose determination to meet her goals compelled her to get as far away from home as she could.

Zionist camp

During her Haverall College high school days in Toronto, she spent her summers at a Zionist summer camp in Maine (at a time when there were no similar camps in Canada). There she met an unusual circle of American Jewish intellectuals and together they dreamed of building a new society in Zion.

Already having gained a reputation for being a Bohemian, Gelber felt free not to pursue her university plans and she set sail for Palestine in 1932.

Her first orientation to the Jewish homeland, then referred to as the Yishuv was rather grim. She had difficulty learning the language as well as adjusting to the tough conditions of climate and terrain.

A perennial lack of water in Jerusalem, where she settled, was a constant feature of life until a pipeline was constructed from the coastal plain bringing water through the Judean Hills.

She lived in both a kibbutz and a kvutza, preferring the relatively small amounts of privacy provided in the latter, before she took her first job with the community council of Jerusalem's department of social work from 1932 to 1937.

After a short visit back to Toronto from November 1935 to February 1936, she noticed a distinct change in the political atmosphere of the Yishuv. She writes: "Arab violence had become so pervasive that certain measures had to be taken to safeguard small Jewish communities located in particularly vulnerable spots. One of these was the old Jewish settlement in Hebron which had suffered a pogrom during the Arab uprising some seven years before."

"The Hebron evacuation was followed by the evacuation of Jews from the city of Silwan perched on the eastern slope of the Kidron Valley. The bureau also tried to ensure the safety of the Jews living in the Jewish Quarter in the Old City in Jerusalem."

Gelber was the social worker engaged in the dangerous role of allocating food supplies to this poor and isolated community.

Sylva Gelber

From 1937 to 1942, she was employed by the Hadassah Medical Organization, not yet housed on Mount Scopus, but in an old two storey building at the corner of the Street of the Prophets and Rabbi Kook Street.

Served her well

Gelber's introduction to statistics at the Hadassah hospital served her well when she returned to Canada to work for the federal government in the field of health insurance.

"Within the Yishuv there already existed several voluntary sick funds, the largest of which was the Histraduth, the Kupath Holim. It was in far away Palestine, before the Second World War, that I first became a disciple of health insurance," she writes.

During the war years, Gelber participated in the extensive cultural activity of the Yishuv. She was a contralto in the YWHA choir and a member of the Jerusalem medrigal society and she even sang Negro spirituals on the Palestinian Broadcast Service.

Anti-Semitism in Canada

Returning to Canada at the outbreak of World War II she was astonished to discover anti-Semitism. At the family summer cottage in Bobcageon, hooligans gathered at the back gate, shouting: "Heil Hitler! Out with the Jews!"

This incident was followed by vandalism at the University Avenue Synagogue on the High Holidays when Canada declared war on Germany.

From 1942 to 1948, Gelber worked for the Palestinian department of Labour. She was the first of a group of women recruited for an officers' training program at Sarafand, an important British Army camp.

As an inspectress for the Department of Labour she quickly found that inspectors earned more than she did.

Equal pay

"I cannot explain how it was that we won the battle for equal pay, particularly since it was many years before it was won on the British home front. But win we did. As the department grew and other women were appointed to professional jobs, no woman was appointed at a lower salary than her male counterpart," the author writes.

Under the British administration Gelber learned the basic principles of trade law. Primarily engaged in research until the last months of the war, she assisted in the procedures set out in the Trade Dispute legislation involving collective bargaining and arbitration.

After the war she switched to the Veteran Resettlement Program, providing aid to 25,000 Yishuv volunteers and 9,000 Arabs. Assistance was in the form of capital grants, vocational training, emergency and permanent housing.

Political pressures

Within the department, British, Arab and Jewish labour officials worked side by side. She could see that some of her Arab colleagues were beginning to come under certain political pressures from within their own community.

Gelber admits that she herself was accused of portraying a pro-British bias. She thinks this is because of her Canadian upbringing with its staunch Anglo-Saxon influence.

She had always associated the concept of the Jewish National Home with the pragmatic efforts of the British beginning with the Balfour Declaration.

As for the Arab population of Palestine, she became depressed about how intimidated and ill-served they were by their leaders, particularly during the days of the Arab Strike in the thirties.

'Arabs deserved better'

Gelber writes: "The Mufti continued to impose his will in spite of his banishment from the land. At his bidding, the few outspoken Arabs who stood for moderation rarely lived to tell the tale. Genuine Arab nationalists such as Musa el Alami were continually subjected to death threats from within Arab ranks. The Arabs deserved better."

Sylva Gelber left Palestine in 1948 before the establishment of the State of Israel.

From the safety of Canada she read of the invasion of seven Arab armies in the first of several wars against Israel and she also read of thousands of Arabs who fled their Palestine homes.

Having been persuaded to leave or having been driven out, they were gone.

UJA Women's Division held an Appreciation and Installation Evening recently at the home of Cally Kardash. Julie Koschitzky, president-elect of United Israel Appeal of Canada, was the keynote speaker at the event.

Bonnie Merovitz, (standing) served as emcee of the evening. Merovitz and Lynda Greenberg will co-chair the Women's Division 1992 U.J.A. Campaign.

Stephanie Gilbert expressed appreciation to Vera Klein, outgoing chairperson of the Women's Division U.J.A. 1990 Campaign, on behalf of the group.

Roz Kimmel, incoming chairperson of the Women's Division, spoke about the importance of Women's Division in carrying out the task of supporting our beneficiary agencies here and in Israel.

Participants enjoyed a most successful evening.

Annual Hillel Academy Tea will feature flower arranging, prizes

The Hillel Academy Parents' Association will hold its annual Spring Tea on Wednesday, June 6, from 12:30 p.m.-3:00 p.m. at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Dolansky, 936 Mooney Avenue.

The tea is the association's major fundraiser, with proceeds directed toward selected programs within the school, such as French program materials or phys. ed. equipment, as the need arises.

Co-chairs Donna Karlin and Ellen Fathi are excited about this year's floral theme. A feature of the event will be a silk flower demonstration by

Donna Karlin

Eva Cohen of The Silk Flower. The floral creation, and other attractive items, will be offered as door prizes.

THE HIDDEN CHILD

The first International Reunion of Children Hidden During World War II, will take place in New York City on May 26 and 27, 1991, at the Hebrew Union College.

The reunion will bring together a unique generation to share its legacy through workshops, discussions, films, press conferences and other events.

It promises to be a most exceptional experience. If you are interested in attending, or would like further information, please contact Josie Finestone, Director of Community Relations at 232-7306.

Class available for 'special' children

A Jewish Education is possible for your "special" child.

The Vaad Panel on Jewish Education sponsors a small class for special students every Sunday morning from 9:30-11:30 a.m. at 881 Broadview. At their individual pace, students study basic prayers, bible stories and the Jewish holidays.

As well, pupils in this class have managed to learn to read and write Hebrew.

The class is open to slower learners, handicap children and children with learning disabilities.

For further information call Doris Bronstein, 722-8827.

Now That Your Children Can Name The Seven Dwarfs, Shouldn't They Know The Ten Commandments?

At the Star of David Hebrew School your child will become so familiar with Jewish traditions as he or she is with modern ones. Ours is a complete program, from Kindergarten to Grade 7, offering instruction in customs, Jewish law, Ivrit, ethics, holidays, Holocaust studies, Bar and Bat Mitzvah.

Situated at Machzikei Hadas Synagogue, Star of David is convenient to Ottawa South, Ottawa Centre, Orleans, Rothwell Heights and Rockcliffe Park.

Classes are held Mondays and Wednesdays, 4:00 p.m. to 6:00 p.m. — Never on Sunday!

Emunah - Mizrachi 1990 Mothers in Israel

It is twenty-one years now (the age of maturity) since Emunah-Mizrachi first introduced its annual MOTHER IN ISRAEL PROJECT to Ottawa, a its major fundraiser. By joining, you are symbolically adopting a child in one of our Emunah projects in Israel. Your donation of $54.00 (three times Chai) helps to implant the seeds of Torah in the hearts and minds of our children, and brings promise of a new and better life for them.

We are grateful to say, that each year our list of Mothers has grown, and still our needs exceed our means, as new crisis situations erupt, to which we must swiftly respond.

This year, Operation Exodus takes precedence over many others, as Israel prepares to provide for and absorb massive waves of new Russian Immigrants, who are "Coming Home".

In deference to this vital imminent priority, we are foregoing our annual MOTHER IN ISRAEL DINNER, so that we may give 100% of these funds directly to Israel.

We do wish to take the opportunity now by means of this Bulletin to pay tribute to you, our MOTHERS IN ISRAEL, and to express our grateful appreciation for your generous support on behalf of our Children in Israel, by listing as follows

KID LIT

by Deanna Silverman

...to meet with joy in sweet Jerusalem
—Shakespeare, Henry VI

It seems only yesterday that we watched TV in solemn awe as The Six Day War ended with Jews praying at the Wailing Wall, for the first time in nineteen years!

In fact it was twenty-three years ago. Suddenly Jerusalem was re-united under Jewish control. No more East Jerusalem, West Jerusalem, Jordanian Jerusalem, Israeli Jerusalem. Only Jerusalem, whole and free.

Jewish access to the Kotel was once again assured. The Hebrew University on Mount Scopus was renewed. And all holy sites became available to their faithful.

Yom Yerushalayim, 28 Iyar (May 23, 1990), is a day to remember, celebrate and promote understanding of just how much Jerusalem means to us.

The following two books do just that. They further our understanding of Jewish-Arab tensions and of the long, often violent, history of Yerushalayim, our beloved City of Peace.

Gavriel and Jemal

Two Boys of Jerusalem

Jerusalem, Shining Still

By Karla Kuskin
Woodcuts by David Frampton
Harper & Row Publishers 1987
28 pages Ages 6-12
Available at Hillel Academy Library.

•In Two Boys of Jerusalem Ashabranner clearly and objectively personalizes the issues and tensions underlying Jewish and Arab lives in the Old City. The photographs of the boys, their families, their activities, and their Jerusalem are enticingly warm, full of passion and hope.

Illustration from Jerusalem Shining Still

Gavriel, age 12, is one of twelve children in an Orthodox Jewish family whose parents each made Aliyah. Jemal, age 14, is the youngest of four children in a believing Moslem Palestinian family who have lived in their home for five generations.

Their daily lives, their games, their joys, their family feelings are similar. Yet there is a distance between the boys and their families that seems unbridgeable. But if peace is to become a reality, a bridge must be built.

•Jerusalem, Still Shining summarizes the complex history of that city from the days of King David to its reunification during The Six Day War. Using sparse rhythmic prose interspersed with verse, Kuskin unfolds her story of this amazing city that has been built, rebuilt, and built again.

She stresses two major themes: that Jewish presence in Jerusalem has been almost continuous for over 3000 years; and that despite successive waves of conquest the hilltop "city of stone" survives and attracts so many people of so many religions to this very day.

David Frampton's richly coloured woodcuts capture and illuminate the cyclic mood of the story and the celestial glow of Jerusalem, Shining Still as the author says, "King David would be proud."

Schools sponsoring a delightful fundraiser

"Shaking Like a Leaf: A Tribute to Danny Kaye" is full of song, dance and comedy that brings to life the true genius that was Danny Kaye.

The Talmud Torah Afternoon School and Akiva High School are sponsoring "Shaking Like a Leaf" on Monday, June 11, 8:00 p.m. at the Centrepoint Theatre, Nepean Civic Square.

Howard Lithwick is chairman of the committee bringing the production to Ottawa as a fundraising project for the two schools.

Kirk McMahon, who stars as Danny Kaye, was inspired to begin work on "Shaking Like a Leaf" after years of people saying to him "Hey, you look just like Danny Kaye."

The pace of this play is quick and light and features excerpts from several of Kaye's performances. The audience will enjoy renditions of "Five Pennies", "Minnie the Moocher" and a medley of Hans Christian Andersen tunes.

Tickets are $18 and are

Howard Lithwick

Attending the meeting, left to right: CJC National Executive Director Jack Silverstone; CJC Chairman of the National Executive Committee Moshe Ronen; Soviet Ambassador to Canada Alexey A. CJC raises flights and Pamyat concerns with Soviet ambassador

A delegation from Canadian-Jewish Congress expressed serious concern about direct flights to Israel and increasing anti-Semitism in a recent meeting with the Soviet Ambassador to Canada, Alexey A. Rodionov.

Ambassador Rodionov responded by strongly denouncing the virulent anti-Semitic group Pamyat and expressing his hope that flights between Moscow and Israel will be initiated.

The Soviet Ambassador

called members of Pamyat "bigots on the fringe of society who do not reflect the official position of the Soviet government nor its population."

CJC President Les Scheininger expressed the community's appreciation with the changes which have taken place in the Soviet Union as a result of "glasnost" and "perestroika."

However, the CJC delegation emphasized the importance of transporting those Jews who have been granted exit visas to Israel in light of resurgent anti-Semitism in the U.S.S.R.

An inter-airline agreement between El Al and Aeroflot was signed last December, but it has yet to be ratified by the Soviet government.

First Secretary Andrei A. Choupin said it is his feeling that the matter can eventually be resolved to the mutual satisfaction of both sides and indicated that progress in Israeli-Palestinian peace talks could help the situation greatly.

The matter of "poor relatives," individuals who are prevented from leaving the country because of the intervention of a relative, was discussed. The Ambassador said he expected legislation to help resolve this problem will be passed very soon.

OTI holding Shavuot Torah learning night

The Ottawa Torah Institute, in conjunction with Congregation Machzikei Hadas, will sponsor a night of Torah learning the first night of Shavuot, Tuesday, May 29.

The program will start at approximately 11:00 p.m. with a Shiur (Torah lecture) given by Rabbi Reuven Bulka, spiritual leader of Congregation Machzikei Hadas.

Subsequent Shiurim will be given throughout the night by members of the faculty of the Ottawa Torah Institute.

A minyan for Shacharis will take place in the early morning hours in order to enable the Amidah to be said at sunrise. Refreshments will be available throughout the night.

The community is invited to participate. For more information please call the Ottawa Torah Institute at 594-5658.

Kitchener-Waterloo Hebrew Day School requires

Two Elementary School Teachers

Dynamic teachers are sought for Kitchener-Waterloo Hebrew Day School, which will begin operation in September 1990. These will be professionally rewarding positions due to small class sizes and your ability to help shape a developing curriculum. We have openings for two elementary school teachers (grades one and two) for the fall of 1990. One teacher is required for general subjects (to be taught in English) and the other for Hebrew subjects. The general subjects teacher must have an Ontario Teachers Certificate or equivalent, and preferably possess the ability to teach French. The Hebrew subjects teacher must hold a suitable University degree, preferably in an area of childhood education, and should have a teacher's certificate for Jewish subjects. This individual should also have training and/or experience in elementary school teaching. Salaries will be commensurate with experience. Send résumé, and the names and addresses of three professional references to Chairman, Search Committee, Kitchener-Waterloo Hebrew Day School, 170 University Ave. West, Suite 12-200, Waterloo, Ont. N2L 3E9. Telephone: 519-855-1211x3209. Closing date June 1, 1990.

Membership increased in Golda Meir Club

State of Israel Bonds Women's Division held its third annual Golda Meir Club Dinner recently at the home of Chairman Ethel Taylor.

The yearly dinner is held to help publicize the benefits of purchasing Israeli bonds. To become members of the Golda Meir Club, women purchase either a total of $5,000 in bonds or an IVRI bond for which they are presented with a pin designed by acclaimed architect, Moshe Safdie.

The over 30 women who attended the dinner, heard guest speaker Robert Evans, former CBS Bureau Chief in Moscow, speak on the history and future of Jews in the Soviet Union.

While many positive changes are occurring in the Soviet Union, Evans said, the combination of new-found freedom and unrest creates a serious threat to Russian Jewry.

Anti-Semitism has reared its ugly head in the form of open threats and physical violence, Evans said. This hatred will not go away and Soviet Jews must leave now while the gates are still open, he added.

Evans noted that, among the numerous dramatic events occurring in recent times, the fact that the Soviet Politburo is willing to allow up to 150,000 Jews to leave per year is truly remarkable.

"It is an opportunity that few Jews can afford to overlook," Evans said.

Contrary to past experience, these emigrants have a haven to go to — Israel — and unlike in the past, the Diaspora Jews are fully aware of what is happening and are therefore in a position to act, the guest speaker said.

In his closing remarks, Evans pondered how many people, here in Ottawa, are alive today because their parents or grandparents managed to escape the menace of the Holocaust and asked how anyone, under such circumstances, could hesitate to help Israel help Soviet Jewry to freedom.

General Campaign Chairman Jonathan Freedman, joined the guest speaker in thanking the women for their support and added that "every soul we resettle today in Israel is one that won't be (in the Soviet Union) when the gates are closed."

The Golda Meir Club currently boasts a total of 35 members — more than half way to Chairman Ethel Taylor's goal of 50.

Meeting elects seven directors of Judaica Archives Project

By Sylvia Fonberg-Rosenes
The first annual meeting of the Canadian Friends of the Judaica Archive Project, was held at the National Library recently.

Walter Cole, acting chairman, read a message from Rabbi Yaacov Rosenes, Director of the Judaica Archive Project, who spoke of the remarkable events in the Soviet Union:

"After 70 years of forced assimilation, Russian Jews are searching for a way to rejoin the Jewish people. We believe that the uniting force is the Oral Torah. By our efforts to save important Judaic literature, we are ensuring that not a word will be lost from this living testimony. It can and will be saved forever," it said.

Unanimous vote

The seven directors — Rabbi Dr. Reuven P. Bulka, Walter Cole, Issie Landau, Dr. George Marcus, Sylvia Rosenes, Molly Sherman and Sandra Zagon — were elected unanimously.

Among the highlights of the year's activities, were the many and varied filming projects of the Jewish Writers Guild of Jerusalem. Considerable interest is being shown in a proposal now before a major American educational endowment fund. This proposal could meet the needs of yeshiva libraries and institutes of Judaic study, worldwide, to preserve their holdings and to gain access to previously unattainable material. Preservation and access is much improved through recent technological advances.

Dr. Yaacov Rosenes

Mr. Cole announced the appointment of two prominent parliamentarians, the Honourable Robert Kaplan, and Mrs. Sheila Finestone, to the Advisory Board. Both have already begun work on Foundation fundraising ideas.

Rabbi Menachem Gopin, executive director of Mizrahi Canada, continues his work as a valued advisor as does Robert Montague, director of the Canadian Institute for Historical Micro-reproduction.

At a March meeting the Executive Committee of the Vaad Ha'ir passed a motion to accept the organization as a constituent member. Ratification is expected to follow shortly.

At the conclusion of the meeting Rabbi Saul Aranov led members on a tour of the Lowy collection, which is housed in the National Library. His extensive knowledge of the collection was further enhanced by a gift, to each member, of a beautifully illustrated commemorative booklet from the Curator of Rare Editions.

Beth Shalom holding gala concert June 11

Congregation Beth Shalom will hold a Gala Concert of Cantorial and Operatic Gems on Monday, June 18 in the main sanctuary, Beth Shalom Synagogue, 151 Chapel St.

A creation of the synagogue's Cantor Stephen Chalet, the evening will be a first for Ottawa, in that two chazzans — Cantor Chalet and the renowned Cantor David Bagley of the Beth Shalom Synagogue in Toronto — with their own accompanists will perform solo renditions as well as cantorial duets, and synagogue masterpieces with the Beth Shalom High Holy Days Choir.

Adding to the variety of the program will be the refreshing mix of cantorial, yiddish and operatic selections.

A reception will follow the performance.

Tickets, priced at $18 per person are available from members of the synagogue or through the offices: Beth Shalom Downtown at 232-3501 or Beth Shalom West at 723-1800.
